

DECARE INTERNATIONAL MAKES $10,000 DONATION TO ST. COLMAN'S COLLEGE

(CLAREMORRIS, Ireland) 10 July, 2006 – DeCare International is pleased to announce a $10,000 (approximately €7,900) corporate donation to St. Colman's College in Claremorris, County Mayo. The donation will go towards the school's €180,000 multi-media enhancement initiative — an effort that will give its students access to cutting-edge technology.

"We truly appreciate the contribution from DeCare International," said Monsignor John O'Boyle, president of St. Colman's College. "Thanks to these types of donations, we now have a state-of-the-art information technology lab, which is one of the best IT systems for second level colleges in the country. The ability to access worldwide resources has opened up a whole new type of teaching aid."

The St. Colman's multi-media initiative includes the following:

- New media lab - PCs, digital projector, interactive screen, printers and scanners
- Upgrade to Macintosh computer room, including new computers and server
- Data projectors installed in classrooms
- Each classroom has a PC and printer
- Any student can now log in with private passwords
- With the addition of broadband, students and teachers can use the multi media facility to its fullest

"We are pleased to support St. Colman's College on this important programme," said Michael Walsh, DeCare International president and CEO. "The multi-media initiative provides students exposure to technology and tools they will need to succeed in the future. It also re-emphasizes St. Colman's College as a first-rate education facility."

"St. Colman's has consistently been a strong developer of talent for our company," said Maureen Walsh, general manager of Claremorris-based DeCare Operations Ireland, Ltd. "This initiative benefits St. Colman's students and, in the long-term, also will benefit local businesses seeking top quality talent."
